Abstract

The socio-politics aspects of society affect development process and so do traditional sex roles. This aspect of development has been largely ignored and contributions of women have been discounted. Promoting women's participation in economic development is an essential element for positive change in society.

Aim of the study to determine main characteristics, economic and social problems of women entrepreneurs in Turkey and to offer solution proposal to the said problems in the context of sustainable development. Method of the study is survey-based due diligence.

Keywords: Women and Development, Women Entrepreneurship, Gender Inequality, Turkey
